

WAUSEON BEAUTIFUL

Add To Clean Up and Paint Up. A Little Planting and The Result Will Be Wauseon The Beautiful. This Summer Make Your Homes Attractive Outside and Inside.

Next Monday, May the 4th has been appointed by the Mayor and Council as the annual clean up day for Wauseon and there is no doubt that Wauseon citizens will respond to this as readily this year as they have in years past. If we are to have an attractive town we must have a clean neat town and the first step toward beautifying the town is to clean up all rubbish from back yards, vacant lots and alleys; then if we can possibly do so, where it is needed, brighten and freshen up buildings and fences by applying a coat of paint and another step is taken toward the realization of a Town Beautiful. Here again, Wauseon citizens are not found wanting, they have and do keep their homes and other buildings well painted.

There are some other features that add to the beauty of Wauseon; one of them is, our lighting system on Fulton, Beech and Depot streets. Visitors to Wauseon remark upon the beauty of the town at night and many have inquired if there was not some sort of a carnival in progress; for a town of its size, it would be hard to find any other town that presents a more attractive appearance in the evening.

Another feature that the citizens of Wauseon appreciate and which adds much to the attractiveness of the town is the diligence of the street commissioner in keeping the streets cleaned up; the sweeper will not have an opportunity to rust out with disuse if it continues to be used as has been the past few weeks. It should be noted in passing that the street sweeper needs to be renewed—a new broom sweeps clean.

Another step toward securing a town beautiful needs to be taken now and that is the planting of flowers shrubs and etc. on the bare places and help nature to transform unattractive places into places of beauty. It is not enough to clean up and paint.

ONE THING YOU CAN NOT DENY
The Church is the backbone of any community. It is the center of all our best life, our best thoughts, our best development. You, as a citizen, do not want to see it banished from the community, yet you do not support it with your presence. Go next Sabbath and keep going therewith.

IN LIFE'S PATH
A familiar image of the Church is that of a person marching forward with a definite purpose. Now, in a trying march there are always some who fall out of the ranks. Most of the people of Christ's disciples have their stragglers. Some have grown tired of carrying the cross, some have been tempted by the opportunities of idleness and pleasure, some have followed the straight and narrow path, some have listened to the voices of doubt and discouragement in their own hearts and have failed to note the Leader's call and cheer. Every church has to think of these stragglers and attempt to get them back into the ranks. Sometimes we have to purge our church rolls, which is always a sorrowful business. For the worst of stragglers is that it puts discouragement into the hearts of others. A clear call is issued for you.

LITERARY LUMBERJACK
Last Friday an auto bearing the inscription, "A Lumberjack" a loitering passed through Wauseon and the occupants, two young men, loitered in Wauseon long enough to tell who they were, where they came from and wither they were bound. They were C. F. Hancock of Chaswell, Mich., who claims that he is a lumberjack and H. R. Merry of Cleveland a cartoonist. They left Cleveland Tuesday April 21st in a Cutting Roadster and are bound for the color country of Northern Michigan; they expect to consume about three weeks in making the trip which is in the interest of good roads. Mr. Hancock expects to publish a book which will recount their experience and will be illustrated by Mr. Merry the cartoonist.

DEFINITE RESULTS

Of County Agency Work. The Half Has Never Been Told.

(National Crop Improvement Service.) Thomas Cooper, director of the Better Farming association of North Dakota, has summarized the work of his organization for 1913 and makes an impressive showing of definite results as follows:

Number of field agents, 25.
One field woman.
Number of farm co-operators, 5,105.

Twenty-two per cent of farmers in territory carrying out some form of co-operative work.

Land under co-operation, 44,612 a.

Average yields on demonstration fields, greater than average of fields farmed by ordinary methods; Corn, 11 bushels; wheat, 5.5 bushels; oats, 5.2 bushels; barley, 6.4 bushels; rye, 3 bushels; flax, 3 bushels; potatoes, 26 bushels; clover, 4 tons.

Alfalfa under supervision, 3,612 acres. Average yield, two cuttings, 2.3 tons per acre.

Value of additional crop grown on acreage actually under demonstration of field force, $114,900.

Much Stock Imported.

Stock brought into state due to indirect influence of the agents; 3,609 head of cattle, 163 pure-bred sires, 15,890 sheep and 64 pigs.

Thirty thousand pounds of alfalfa distributed for seed in the spring.

Twenty-three thousand bushels of seed corn selected and planted; alfalfa and clover seed were also distributed; 106 bushels mature corn to acre.

Held pork production contest. "Farmers' club" organized, 180; number of farm families members, 4,000; meetings held, 747; attendance, 66,400; seed tests for germination, 17,000.

Silos constructed directly due to influence of agents, 81; number constructed in districts where agents were employed, 150.

One-third of the state is co-operating in the work of the association, and approximately one-half of the agricultural area of the entire commonwealth is embraced in the operations of the better farming movement.

WHAT ROCK ROADS WILL DO

A Factor in the High Cost of Living Problem.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)

The construction of rock roads will do much to solve the high cost of living problem than all else combined.

What do you think of that declaration? It was made by one of the county's most prominent and successful farmers, Mr. A. H. Teter, of Blackwater township, a man whose success is proof of the fact that he uses his brains as well as his hands.

Let's think—also talk some—about Mr. Teter's statement. His time was limited, hence his elaboration was brief, but his contention was that bad roads cause untold and irregular hardships. If a considerable number of farmers, the producers of food stuffs, are prevented by bad roads from marketing their products for any extended period, a shortage of available food results and prices advance as a consequence.

Let's analyze Mr. Teter's conclusion: Who pays the advanced price of food caused by the bad roads? You and I and everyone compelled to buy.

Does the producer profit from these advanced prices? Most assuredly not if he lives on impassable mud roads, because he can't market his produce. On the contrary, he is compelled to accept a lower than normal price when he is able to get to market for the reason that so many other producers have been kept off the market by the same cause that when the roads again become passable there is such a rush of food stuffs as to overload the market and force down prices.

It may be argued that that reaction would offset and tend to equalize the high price, but that is only a view of the matter, because much of the required food stuff is of a perishable or semi-perishable character and being held too long caused deterioration.

Had roads deteriorated the market, causing the extra high price, great reaction to follow the other of overabundance and the corresponding fluctuations of prices, the fact that the roads are the most practical and consistent advocates of public road improvement ought to set every person to thinking to find out why the railroads take such a view of the matter when we know that passable roads are direct competitors with many instances of the railroads themselves. They explain their advocacy of good roads by saying that were the farmers able to market their surplus products whenever they wanted to or when it was most convenient or profitable for them to do so, the country's surplus would be distributed over the entire year and would not be rushed to market within the very limited periods when there is assurance of passable roads. This would result in the railroads having a regular all-year-around business, which could handle much more economically and therefore profitably, for they would not have great scarcity of rolling stock at certain periods and a great abundance of idle rolling stock at other periods.—M. V. Carroll, Pettis county, Mo.

Long Lost Auk Discovered.

A species of bird hitherto believed to be extinct, the rhinoceros auk, is to be found by thousands on Fox Island, Alaska, according to an announcement made by Prof. Harold Heath of the zoology department of Stanford university. The auk, he said, is a nocturnal bird about the size of a large pigeon. It burrows as much as 15 feet in the ground where it makes its home.
